1. What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files placed on your device when you visit a website. They help websites function and can provide information about how visitors use the site.

2. How we use cookies

Our website uses cookies where needed for its operation and security. Depending on the features enabled on our website, additional cookies may be used for analytics or by third-party services. We will check the cookies actually in use and update this policy as necessary.

3. Types of cookies

Essential cookies

These are necessary for the website to operate or provide a service you request. They do not generally require consent.

Analytics cookies

If we enable analytics cookies, they may help us understand how visitors use our website, for example which pages are visited. We will seek consent before setting non-essential analytics cookies.

Third-party cookies

Some optional website features, such as embedded content, may involve third-party providers setting cookies. Where these are non-essential, we will seek consent before they are set.

4. Your choices

Where our website uses non-essential cookies, we will provide a way to accept or reject them before they are set, and to change your choice later. You can also delete or block cookies using your browser settings, although this may affect website functionality.
